Fast Trains Return with Surprise Single and Debut UK Tour

Fast Trains surprised fans on Friday with a new single, 'Can You Take a Bullet For Me', their first new music since 2021's ourWorld Volume 1 EP.

Written and produced by Fast Trains' Tom Wells, 'Can You Take a Bullet For Me' arrives a week before Wells undertakes his first UK tour. Starting in Huddersfield on 8th April, the tour takes in London, Edinburgh and several other UK cities and towns, including a hometown headline show at Portsmouth's Edge of the Wedge on Monday 11th April.

'Can You Take a Bullet For Me' sees Fast Trains working again with Mikko Gordon, whose recent credits include Thom Yorke, Arcade Fire, The Smile and Gaz Coombes. Gordon mixed and mastered the release, as with previous Fast Trains single 'A Thousand Tiny Cuts', which received national radio support and reached the final of last year's UK Songwriting Contest.

This time, Fast Trains are in explosive form. 'Can You Take a Bullet For Me' is a high tempo, guitar-heavy driving track, steeped in psychedelia and with combined with cryptic lyrics. The recording features all the members of the Fast Trains live band for the first time, and their influence shows; gone are the looped drum machines and keyboard-heavy productions of previous releases, replaced with a powerful and cohesive band sound that indicates what the future may bring with Fast Trains.

Typically for Fast Trains, 'Can You Take a Bullet For Me' has been released exclusively to YouTube and the official website, continuing their atypical approach of releasing music away from the usual streaming platforms such as Spotify and Apple Music. The single is free to stream now on YouTube and at www.fasttrains.co.uk.

'Can You Take a Bullet For Me', the new single by Fast Trains is out now on YouTube. Their debut UK tour takes place across April 2022, tickets and information available from the Fast Trains website (www.fasttrains.co.uk).
